Bail Revision Bar

High Court Stresses Limits on Challenging Release Orders

Sheikh Rayees • November 5, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a decisive nod to judicial precedent, the Bombay High Court declared that bail orders cannot be contested through revision proceedings, reinforcing a principle laid down by the Supreme Court. Justice Anil Kilor emphasized that such orders are not subject to revision under Section 397(2) of the Criminal Procedure Code (CrPC), which limits revisional powers concerning interlocutory orders. The Court leaned on the landmark Supreme Court case Amar Nath v....
