A Child's Heart Can't Be Won by Court Orders

Sheikh Rayees • August 5, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a courtroom in Anantnag, law stepped aside and let love speak. A father, hoping to reclaim his son's company through legal channels, was reminded by the district court that no order can override a child's will—or mend what time and absence have torn. The case revolved around a custody dispute rooted in a 2024 compromise agreement, which granted the father visitation rights and allowed him to request a change...
