Delhi Court Reviews Who Should Pay for Solar Infrastructure

Editorial Team • September 19, 2026

PUBLISHED REPORT

The Delhi High Court has sought responses to a constitutional challenge concerning the financing of pil-order-701219group and virtual solar-metering projects. The petition argues that infrastructure developed for participating solar consumers is ultimately financed through electricity tariffs paid by all consumers—including households that neither join nor directly benefit from those projects. It challenges rules allowing distribution companies to recover network-development...
