Property Rights Still Stand Tall Despite Losing 'Fundamental' Tag

Sheikh Rayees • May 6, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a scathing rebuke to State overreach, the Delhi High Court has declared that the right to property, though no longer classified as a fundamental right, remains deeply entrenched in India's constitutional fabric and cannot be trampled upon without lawful authority. The ruling comes in the case involving the late HK Sarin, whose flat in Delhi was held in prolonged and illegal occupation by the Central government for over two...
