Federal Court Throws Cold Water on Effort to End Birthright Citizenship

Sheikh Rayees • July 12, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a decisive move, a federal judge intervened to block the recent executive directive aimed at revoking automatic U.S. citizenship for children born on American soil. Citing core constitutional protections, the court found that the order ran headlong into the 14th Amendment's clear guarantee of birthright citizenship, suspending its enforcement pending further legal review. Outside the courthouse, demonstrators waved banners and chanted in support of immigrant families...
