Why the India-Pakistan Water Dispute Just Won't Dry Up

Sheikh Rayees • July 5, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a corner of The Hague, a tribunal under the Permanent Court of Arbitration (PCA) has lit a fresh spark in the long-running, hydra-headed dispute between India and Pakistan over the Indus River system. The court declared it has jurisdiction to hear Pakistan's complaints about India's Kishanganga and Ratle hydropower projects—even though India has pulled the plug on the Indus Waters Treaty (IWT) in protest after the Pahalgam terror attack....
