Judge Holds the Line, Birthright Citizenship Order Stays on Ice

Sheikh Rayees • July 29, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a decisive move, a federal judge reaffirmed a sweeping injunction that halts the implementation of the president's bid to strip children born on U.S. soil of automatic citizenship. The ruling underscores the court's unwillingness to let executive overreach unravel a constitutional guarantee rooted in the 14th Amendment. The judge's opinion paints the administration's directive as a bold departure from decades of settled law, warning that upending birthright citizenship would...
