Karnataka Scraps Mandatory Arbitration in State Contracts, Shifting Dispute Resolution to Courts

Sheikh Rayees • November 25, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a decisive move, the Karnataka government has done away with the compulsory arbitration clause that had been a staple of state contracts and tenders since 2014. A circular issued on November 16 announced the withdrawal, citing financial strain and impracticality as key reasons for the decision. The clause, introduced a decade ago, mandated that disputes between the government and private contractors be resolved through arbitration, as outlined in the...
