Kerala High Court Slams Late-Night Police Raids

“Every Home Is a Castle,
Even for the Accused”

Sheikh Rayees • June 24, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

The Kerala High Court has drawn a firm constitutional line in the sand: police officers cannot pound on doors or enter homes of so-called "history sheeters" in the dead of night under the pretense of surveillance. Justice VG Arun, delivering a sharp rebuke to late-night policing tactics, made it clear that such intrusions trample on the right to privacy guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution. Referencing Supreme Court precedents...
