Maintenance Claim Requires Trial Despite Disputed Marriage

Editorial Team • September 19, 2026

PUBLISHED REPORT

The Gauhati High Court has declined to quash maintenance proceedings despite inconsistencies concerning the date and location of the alleged marriage. The applicant denied that the claimant was his wife and relied on contradictory accounts given in different proceedings. The court acknowledged that those discrepancies created doubt, but held that they could not be conclusively resolved through summary pre-trial intervention. For maintenance purposes, the inquiry may...
