NCLAT Fixes Blunder in Google Antitrust Ruling, Restores Key Data Transparency Orders

Sheikh Rayees • May 3, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a dramatic turn in India's tech-regulation saga, the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) has issued a corrective order in its high-stakes face-off involving Google and the Competition Commission of India (CCI), quietly overturning a misstep in its earlier ruling. The tribunal clarified this week that two major directives aimed at curbing Google's data dominance — those mandating transparency in how the tech giant collects, uses, and shares data,...
