Supreme Court Shuts Door on Late Lawsuits Under Limitation Act

Sheikh Rayees • April 16, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a decisive pushback against delayed litigation, the Supreme Court has ruled that the limitation period for filing a civil suit begins when the cause of action first arises—not when the plaintiff feels they've finally pieced together the whole puzzle. The ruling emerged from a bench comprising Justices Pankaj Mithal and SVN Bhatti, who dismantled the idea that a plaintiff can extend the limitation period by pleading “full knowledge” of...
