One-Day Delay, Lifelong Dream Supreme Court Restores Tribal Woman's Right to Government Job

Sheikh Rayees • September 24, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

A Scheduled Tribe candidate who had cleared every stage of a gruelling government recruitment process—prelims, mains, and interview—nearly lost her shot at a government job for arriving one day late to her medical examination. The Supreme Court has now stepped in, calling the rejection “disproportionate and unjust,” and ordered her appointment.
