Supreme Court Bars Delay Condonation Due to Subsequent Law Changes

Sheikh Rayees • June 6, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a pivotal judgment on land acquisition cases, the Supreme Court has firmly stated that changes in law after the fact cannot justify condonation of delay in legal proceedings. "If subsequent change of law is allowed as a valid ground for condonation of delay, it would open a Pandora's Box where all cases that were subsequently overruled, or cases relying on judgments that were subsequently overruled, would seek relief based...
