Supreme Court Clears Employers in Electrocution Death Case, Calls Incident Accidental

Sheikh Rayees • March 11, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a significant ruling, the Supreme Court has discharged two employers accused of culpable homicide following the electrocution deaths of two workers engaged in decorating a storefront. The case revolved around allegations that the workers had not been provided with safety gear such as helmets, safety belts, or rubber shoes while installing a signboard using an iron ladder. Initially, a trial court and later a high court had refused to...
