Supreme Court Draws Line

No Room for Executives to Impose Guilt with Bulldozers

Sheikh Rayees • November 14, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a landmark judgment addressing the controversial "bulldozer actions," the Supreme Court has firmly cautioned against any executive-led demolitions aimed at punishing individuals accused of crimes, declaring such measures a grave "abuse of power." The ruling underscored that only the judiciary holds the authority to pronounce guilt and impose punishments, warning that any disregard of this foundational principle would be met with "the heavy hand of the law." A...
