SUPREME COURT

Supreme Court Exonerates Car Dealer from Liability in Fatal Test Drive Incident

Sheikh Rayees • September 5, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a significant ruling, the Supreme Court has determined that a car dealer is not liable for compensation under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, following a tragic accident that resulted in a death during a test drive conducted by employees of the vehicle's manufacturer. The case involved a fatal accident during a test drive of a Lancer vehicle, for which both the dealer and the manufacturer had initially been held...
