Supreme Court Expands Consumer Rights to Include Corporations

Night Hawk • March 25, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a landmark ruling that could redefine the landscape of consumer rights in India, the Supreme Court has clarified that corporations are entitled to file complaints under the Consumer Protection Act of 1986. This decision reverses a previous stance by the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission (NCDRC), affirming the legal standing of corporate entities as 'persons' within the ambit of consumer law. Judicial Overview and Case Background At the heart...
