Supreme Court Highlights India's Lingerin Judge Shortage

“Not Even Halfway There”

Sheikh Rayees • November 23, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

India's Supreme Court has expressed deep concern over the country's long-standing failure to address the critical shortage of judges, emphasizing the dire consequences of an overwhelmed judiciary. Despite a 2002 directive aiming to achieve a judge-to-population ratio of 50 per million by 2007, the current ratio in 2024 still languishes below 25 per million. Reflecting on this shortfall, the Court stressed the immense pressure placed on judicial officers, which often...
