Supreme Court Reshapes Schedule

Regular Cases Shelved Midweek to Tackle Backlog

Sheikh Rayees • November 17, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a significant shake-up of its weekly schedule, the Supreme Court has announced it will no longer hear regular matters on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Instead, these midweek slots will focus on miscellaneous cases, such as bail applications and transfer petitions, aiming to streamline the growing docket. The new directive, issued via a circular, outlines that Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays will be reserved for handling these shorter cases. For part-heard or...
