Supreme Court Rules Ad-Hoc Lecturers Ineligible for Senior Pay Scale Under CAS

Sheikh Rayees • August 8, 2024

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a recent decision, the Supreme Court has clarified that time served as an ad-hoc lecturer cannot be included when determining eligibility for the senior pay scale under the Career Advancement Scheme (CAS). Justices Hima Kohli and Ahsanuddin Amanullah presided over the case, ruling that only regular service counts towards CAS benefits. The Career Advancement Scheme, which was established by the Union Government on July 22, 1988, was designed to...
