Supreme Court Rules Limitation Period for Appeals Starts from Judgment Pronouncement, Not Receipt of Copy

Sheikh Rayees • April 29, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a significant ruling, the Supreme Court has clarified that under the Commercial Courts Act, 2015, the limitation period for filing an appeal begins from the date of the judgment's pronouncement, not from when a party receives a copy of the judgment. This decision emphasizes the need for parties to be proactive in securing a certified copy of the judgment rather than relying on its formal delivery by the court....
