SUPREME COURT

Supreme Court Upholds State Power Commissions' Authority Over Inter-State Electricity Access

Sheikh Rayees • April 3, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a significant ruling, the Supreme Court has affirmed that State Electricity Regulatory Commissions (SERCs) retain oversight over inter-state power supply when it impacts their respective state grids. This decision clarifies the regulatory boundary between the Central Electricity Regulatory Commission (CERC) and state commissions under the Electricity Act, 2003. While CERC governs inter-state electricity transmission, the Court ruled that SERCs can...
