SUPREME COURT

Supreme Court Upholds Trial in Corruption Case, Rejects High Court's Premature Quashing of Sanction

Sheikh Rayees • January 13, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

The Supreme Court has clarified that determining whether a prosecution sanction under the Prevention of Corruption Act (PC Act), 1988, was granted by a competent authority is a matter to be established through evidence, not assumed prematurely. This ruling came as the Court set aside a High Court decision that quashed trial proceedings using Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC). A bench comprising Justice Bela M. Trivedi...
