Water Tanks Are for Everyone, Not Just Temples, Rules Madras High Court

Sheikh Rayees • August 15, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

A temple's claim to exclusive ownership of a water tank, even one historically used for its rituals, has been struck down by the Madras High Court. The court ruled that the state of Tamil Nadu has the right to manage water bodies for the public good, a move it says doesn't infringe on a temple's religious rights. The case centered on a 1963 law, the Tamil Nadu Minor Inams Act,...
