When Governors Cry 'Unconstitutional,' President Should Knock on Supreme Court's Door, Says SC

Sheikh Rayees • April 15, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a sharp and significant observation tucked within its ruling in the Tamil Nadu Governor case, the Supreme Court has laid down a constitutional compass: if a Governor stalls a Bill by waving the red flag of unconstitutionality, the President of India would do well to walk the legal high road—straight to the Supreme Court for advice. This recommendation isn't just a gentle nudge. It draws its weight from Article...
