SUPREME COURT

When Monochrome Won't Do Supreme Court Demands Full-Colour Precision in Case Paperbooks

Sheikh Rayees • November 25, 2025

PUBLISHED REPORT

In a firm push for clarity over compromise, the Supreme Court has declared that the age of black-and-white photographs in case records is officially over. A fresh judicial order has instructed the Registry to block any paperbook that dares to rely on monochrome images, leaving such filings suspended in the limbo of “defects not cured” until properly replaced.
